Privacy Policy

Effective October 24, 2026 · Version 2026-10-24

Your Take LLC, United States of America, is responsible for the personal information described in this policy. Contact operations@YourTake.com with privacy questions or requests. This policy explains our practices; it is not a request for blanket consent to every use of information.

This Privacy Policy covers Your Take at yourtake.dev and its related account, sports discussion, predictions, live Arena, messaging and community services. It explains what information is processed, why it is used, who may receive it and the choices available to you. Third-party services you visit independently have their own privacy policies.

1. Information we process

Account and profile information includes your email address, account identifiers, username, display name, bio, favorite sports or teams, profile photo and information you choose to provide. Sign-in services process credentials and authentication information. If you use Google sign-in, account information is received as permitted by your authorization. If you enable two-factor authentication, related enrollment and verification information is processed.

Content and activity includes takes, predictions, picks and outcomes, comments, agreements and disagreements, points, ranks, Sports IQ, follows, saved takes, messages, community memberships, creator applications, uploaded photos or videos, reports, blocks and Arena participation or history. We also process information you send when asking for support or exercising your rights.

Subscription and creator information includes the plan or community you purchase, payment-provider identifiers, billing status, transaction and earnings records, creator payout handles, legal name and tax-form confirmation, and information needed to administer payments or payouts. Apple or Google handles purchases made through its mobile store; Stripe handles website checkout. Payment providers process payment details through their own payment forms; store purchase verification does not require you to send Your Take a payment-card number.

Technical information may include IP addresses, browser and device information, request and error logs, session identifiers and information needed to deliver, secure and troubleshoot the service. Error records can include an error message, stack trace, request status and page path; paths can contain account, post or room identifiers. Your browser also stores session and preference information. The services described below receive information when their features are used.

2. Why information is used

We use information to create and secure accounts; display profiles and content; deliver messages, follows and notifications; operate Arenas and communities; calculate rankings and grade predictions; administer subscriptions and creator earnings; provide requested AI features; and respond to support and privacy requests.

Information is also used to investigate abuse, enforce community rules and our Terms of Service, prevent fraud or score manipulation, troubleshoot problems and comply with legal obligations. Activity and engagement information supports discovery, leaderboards and creator analytics. These functions may produce inferred scores or insights about activity and performance; they are not a guarantee of sporting ability or future outcomes.

Where a law requires a legal basis, processing may be necessary to provide the service under our agreement with you, comply with legal obligations, pursue legitimate interests such as security and service operation, or follow your consent where required. You may withdraw consent for consent-based processing without affecting earlier lawful processing. Device permission does not authorize unrelated uses of your information.

3. Public content and restricted features

Profiles, takes, predictions, comments, rankings, follows and Arena activity may be visible to other users or visitors according to the feature and its access rules. Posting to a public area can make information accessible beyond your immediate followers. Do not include personal information you do not want that audience to see.

Saved takes are account-specific. Messages are shared with their participants, and private or paid communities limit access under their membership rules. Restricted access is not a promise of end-to-end encryption or an inability for recipients to copy information. Authorized service access may occur for support, safety, legal compliance and operation. Recipients can take screenshots or retain copies outside our control.

Community creators and authorized moderators can access information needed to administer their communities and available activity or analytics views. Their access is not permission to disclose your information outside authorized purposes.

4. Camera, microphone and uploaded media

Taking a debater seat can send live camera video and microphone audio to other Arena participants and viewers. Your device asks for permission before camera or microphone access. Turn controls may limit when audio is active. Live connections can involve direct peer connections, Google STUN connection services or Metered.ca Open Relay TURN services; participants or network providers may receive connection information, including IP addresses, and relay services handle live media traffic when a direct connection is unavailable.

Video takes you record are previewed on your device before you choose to publish them. Publishing a photo or video uploads that media for storage and delivery to the audience allowed by the post. Camera access alone does not make a video take public. You can stop recording, discard a preview and revoke camera or microphone permission in your browser or device settings.

Other participants may record or copy live sessions independently. Avoid sharing sensitive surroundings, location information or another person's image or voice without appropriate permission. This policy does not promise that live sessions or uploaded media are impossible to capture or retain.

5. Chet and AI processing

When you use Chet or other AI features, prompts and information needed for the requested result are sent to AI service providers through the service's AI gateway. Depending on the feature, this can include sports questions, prediction text and relevant outcomes, or community activity summaries. Arena judging sends recordings of a speaker's own turns for transcription and automated scoring. Transcripts, judge feedback and turn scores are stored under room access rules. Automated prediction assessments and insights may be stored or displayed in the app.

Do not submit passwords, payment details, confidential information or personal information unrelated to your request. AI results can be wrong; scoring or enforcement concerns can be raised through support or operations@YourTake.com. Provider handling, retention and any model-improvement uses depend on the provider and applicable service arrangements; this policy does not promise zero retention or make an unverified claim that all providers exclude training.

6. Who receives information

Information is processed by service providers that support hosting, account authentication, data and media storage, email delivery, payment processing, AI, diagnostics and live-video connectivity. Your Take uses Lovable Cloud for application services and Stripe for website payment processing; Google is involved when you choose Google sign-in. In packaged mobile apps, when store purchasing is available, Apple or Google processes in-app payments and RevenueCat verifies purchase status using your account identifier and store transaction information. Native notification registration stores a device delivery token associated with your account; background delivery depends on the configured Apple/Google notification services. Providers receive information needed for their role and may have their own legal obligations and privacy notices.

Information is shared with the audience or recipients of the features you use, including message participants, Arena viewers, and community creators or moderators as described above. We may disclose information when required by law, to respond to valid legal process, protect safety or legal rights, investigate fraud or abuse, or support a business transaction such as a merger or asset transfer, subject to applicable safeguards.

Privacy laws can define sale, sharing and targeted advertising more broadly than an ordinary sale for money. Contact operations@YourTake.com to request applicable opt-outs or information about disclosures. This policy does not assert an independently verified no-sale or no-sharing status for every third-party provider.

7. Cookies, browser storage and notifications

Cookies and browser storage support authentication, session continuity, preferences such as theme, and service operation. Sign-in and payment providers may use their own cookies or storage during their flows. You can manage cookies and stored site data in your browser; blocking or clearing them may sign you out or prevent some features from working.

Device notifications require browser or device permission. Notification text may be visible on a shared device or lock screen. You can revoke notification permission through your browser or device settings. This policy does not imply that an optional analytics or advertising consent control exists where none has been presented.

8. Retention and deletion

Retention depends on the information and purpose: account and content records support ongoing service use; moderation and security records support investigations; and billing or earnings records may need to be kept for accounting, disputes or legal requirements. Information is retained as needed for those purposes. This policy does not promise one fixed deletion period for every record or provider.

Choose Delete account in Settings or at yourtake.dev/delete-account. Confirming DELETE permanently removes your sign-in account, profile (including followed teams), takes and uploaded media, follows, messages and associated personal activity when no ownership, billing or enforcement review is needed. Reports involving the account are removed from active reporting records; a restricted copy of reports and relevant reported messages may be retained for safety investigations and legal obligations. Accounts with community ownership, billing or creator records, or enforcement responsibilities enter a reviewed deletion request instead; they are not deleted immediately. Contact operations@YourTake.com for review and completion or to request deletion by email. Backups, required transaction records, safety investigations, and copies retained by recipients can limit immediate or complete deletion. Closing an account does not itself cancel a recurring subscription; cancel through the website or Apple/Google subscription-management controls separately.

9. Security and international processing

The service uses authentication and access controls to help protect information. No website, storage system or live connection can be guaranteed completely secure. Keep your credentials private, consider two-factor authentication and report suspected unauthorized account access promptly.

Your Take LLC is based in the United States of America. Service providers may process information in the United States or other countries, which may have different privacy laws. Where required by applicable law, appropriate safeguards and transfer mechanisms must apply. Contact operations@YourTake.com with questions about processing locations or applicable transfer safeguards.

10. Your choices and privacy rights

You can edit available profile information, manage follows and saved takes, use blocking and reporting controls, adjust device permissions and manage subscriptions. Depending on your location and applicable law, you may also have rights to access or obtain a copy of personal information, correct it, request deletion, restrict or object to processing, withdraw consent, obtain portability, or opt out of covered sale, sharing, targeted advertising or certain profiling.

Send requests to operations@YourTake.com, stating the request and enough account information to locate your records. Do not send your password. We may verify identity or an authorized agent's authority and respond within the deadlines required by applicable law. Rights may be subject to legal exceptions. If a request is denied, you may contact the same address to seek review or an appeal where available, and you may complain to the appropriate privacy regulator. We will not unlawfully discriminate against you for exercising applicable privacy rights.

If you rely on a browser privacy signal, contact us to confirm how it applies to the service. This policy does not claim that automated handling of every opt-out signal is already implemented.

11. Age eligibility

Your Take is intended for people at least 18 years old, or the age of majority where they live if higher, as stated in the Terms of Service. It is not directed to children under 13. If you believe a child has provided personal information contrary to these rules, contact operations@YourTake.com so we can investigate and take appropriate action.

12. Changes and contact

We may update this policy when practices or legal requirements change. The effective date and version identify the current policy. Material changes will be communicated through the service or other appropriate means, with consent requested where required by law.

For privacy questions, requests or complaints, contact Your Take LLC, United States of America, at operations@YourTake.com. This policy supplements the Terms of Service and does not limit privacy rights that applicable law gives you.
